The favorite dishes of many of the leading figures of American life make this book a treasure trove for the hostess who aims to please. An author coming for dinner? Let her try the choice of Irvin S. Cobb, O. O. McIntyre, George Jean Nathan, John Dos Passos, Erskine Caldwell, or a score of others. A scholar? The chosen favorites of Dr. William Beebe, Lewis Mumford, Sigmund Spaeth, Frank H. Vizetelly, or Hendrik Willem van Loon should help her out. And there are good bets for scientists, explorers, musicians, actors, artists, and whoever might come besides. From soups to desserts this book provides dishes of unusual appeal for the discriminating hostess and her guests, famous or not famous, but hungry.

*Piquant Spanish Dishes
from the Old Clay Pot*

by

ELINOR BURT

From South and Central America, Mexico, and Spain the author has gathered a huge collection of recipes, making her book the definitive study of Spanish cookery. Included are recipes ranging from entrees to beverages and desserts. Those who have delighted in Spanish food will find a variety of dishes that will embellish the menu and provide the pièce de résistance for that "different" dinner party.
