"Nosey hung on. Even though the torture was great the honey was worth it."

TROOPERS THREE

One of the many amusing illustrations Zhenya Gay has made for the book.

204

TROOPERS THREE

RUTHERFORD G. MONTGOMERY

TROOPERS THREE

By R. G. Montgomery

These are the experiences of three bears who trooped together after their mothers were killed by a landslide on Sleepy Cat Mountain.

Frosty, the grizzly, was the oldest, so he led the trio in search of food and was the first to give warning of danger.

Hooligan was the brown cub with a flair for clowning. He could express any emotion by standing on his front paws, head down, and by doing flip-flops.

The black cub, Nosey, was usually the first into trouble by reason of a great curiosity.

During the summer months Frosty, Hooligan, and Nosey learned how to get food, how to protect themselves from other animals, and how to escape the traps set by Cougar George. They were seasoned troopers who found themselves caves for the winter.

There are no more engaging characters in fiction than these three, and their story is a fine and accurate contribution to animal literature. Mr. Montgomery has lived all of his life in Western mountain regions, and he numbers several bears among his good friends

From 8 years on.

334

VIVID
ANIMAL STORIES

By R. G. Montgomery

CARCAJOU

The intrepid wolverine, mightiest of the wilderness killers, is an animal seldom presented in fiction. This tale of a savage freebooter is unique in animal literature for boys and girls. A Junior Literary Guild selection.

280 pages, large 12mo,
illustrated, $2.00

YELLOW EYES

The hunted existence of a cougar makes the pages of this book blaze with excitement. The animals portrayed in the story are as real as human characters in their dramatic struggle for life.

243 pages, large 12mo,
illustrated, $2.00

BROKEN FANG

Bart—half wolf, half dog—comes close to the heart of a human master, and in his own way proves that an animal may possess a faithfulness even more enduring than that of human beings.

186 pages, 12mo,
illustrated, $1.00